

EARLY SUMMER COLONY
ENJOYS OUTDOOR LIFE

Walking, Driving, Fishing and Swimming Are Popular Pastimes at Natural Bridge.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Natural Bridge, Va., June 24.—This is the time of the year when the wanderlust seizes one, the desire to be up and away from the usual routine, to seek new scenes and associations and to find rest and recreation far from the madding crowd. The call of the wild comes now with an overwhelming earnestness, and the mountains beckon the toll-worn and weary. The delightful bridge offers many enchantments. All the charms of outdoor land are here, and the lover of charming mountain scenery, romantic walks, cool, pine-laden air and endless drives in all directions could not choose a better place than these heights. With every convenience that modern ingenuity has devised for driving away dull care in the drowsy days, the bridge is proving more and more attractive to the vacationist each summer.

The early summer colony is attractive, and is enjoying the mid-June charms of outdoor land. The guests sit on the broad piazzas or walk, drive, fish and swim to their hearts' content. The gaiety of the time has been much increased by frequent automobile parties from Lexington, bearing the belles and beaux of the commonwealth to the scene. On Tuesday the grounds were thronged with the members of the Westminster Sunday school, of Lynchburg, who came here for their annual picnic, and a had a charming day. A number of parties stopped here on their way to Luray Caverns, and so included the great stone arch that is a bridge in fact as well as in name, among the sights that are not to be missed. This is a most accessible locality with convenient schedules.

Mrs. John Paul and Miss Marie P. Paul, of Watertown, Fla., and Miss Charlene Street, of Jamaica, W. I., have apartments in the Jefferson Cottage for the summer.

Mrs. R. L. Owen, Miss Owen, J. D. Owen and J. C. Sneed, of Lynchburg, made up a touring party that stopped here on its way to Boston.

Mrs. Theron R. Woodward, Miss Woodward and Master Emory C. Woodward, of Chicago, are summer colonists who are finding much pleasure and recreation on these heights.

Prof. Julian Blanchard, of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., recently spent a pleasant outing here.

Mrs. John W. Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Leys, the Misses Leys, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Carroll, Miss Marjorie Carroll and Mrs. D. W. Layman made up a touring party who made the bridge one of its stopping places.

Mrs. Beverly D. Causey and family, of Watertown, Fla., are located in the Jefferson Cottage for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Snyder, of Richmond, are mid-June colonists, who are finding rest and recreation in the pleasant bridge ways.
